Rice Market Report

Italy: The rice mills are present at the markets, but they don't have much work and as a result they do not buy much paddy. On the farmers' side, they only sell the essential, the long A especially and the long B Provisia is also offered.

For the other varieties they only sell a few trucks at a time, for quick loadings in October. They think current prices are too low and hope for increases.

It is very difficult to make prices for milled rice, because not all rice mills have the same energy costs. Rice mills buy on the open market and therefore not everyone has the same prices.

So far, the paddy-milled rice yields do not seem to be very high. Another bad news in terms of price of finished product.
