Rice Market Report

Italy: The market is rather tight; there are 5 months left before the new harvest is available (October), and paddy availability is dwindling. Moreover, only low-yield batches remain. Rice mills are already buying paddy from each other.

Given these facts, there can be significant differences in the price of the finished product depending on whether the rice mill has paddy in house (when it was purchased and at what yield) or whether it has to buy it on the market.

The Arborio market is quite heavy this week, although there is officially no decrease in paddy prices, the decrease in demand for this variety from foreign markets in recent weeks is leading to a reduction in the price of the finished product.

The price of round paddy rice is increasing, with Omega and Araldo paddy rice now reaching €550/mt.

There has been an increase in the prices of parboiled finished products, but there is no increase in paddy prices either. The prices of finished products are rising solely due to low production yields and quality.

Regarding the new harvest, farmers had started sowing in recent days but had to stop due to rain. Weather permitting, most of the crops will be sown between May 11th and 16th. For short-cycle varieties, this will be in late May or early June.
