Rice Market Report

Italy: Still no rain in Italy, the farmers take advantage to cut as much as possible. By Sunday they should have harvested the 80% of the harvest. The forecast predicts a dry October month, if it turns out to be true they should have harvested it all by Wednesday of next week.

Obviously farmers have no longer a storage problem so they are no longer in an emergency and forced to make very attractive prices. The paddy Indica is therefore officially €270/TM, as it is the price paid by some major players in the market.

There was no sale at the market in Mortara this morning, so it is difficult to know precisely the prices that the farmers want to obtain, nevertheless the trend of prices is to increase.

The Baldo and the Cammeo have already increased a lot, Turkey having bought a lot. We are also expecting a big increase on the St-Andrea since they planted -50% area compared to last year and that pre-contracts were made on the paddy at price levels between € 350-400/MT

From what has been seen the Loto as well as the Selenio are more spotted than last year.

By-product prices remain stable.
